Algerian National Officials Struggle To Set Up Regime

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP)—This new nation bordered on anarchy Wednesday and administration officials struggled to set up an effective regime and head off internal strife.
The French abruptly halted administrative operations throughout Algeria and surrendered their powers to the new Moslem state, leaving confusion and no visible sign of authority.
European fears rose as Moslems began moving without hindrance into apartments once occupied by Frenchmen and stealing cars of Europeans.
Ministers of the nationalist government of Premier Youssef ben Khedda, who returned from their Tunisian exile Tuesday, consulted with members of the Algerian Provisional Executive headed by Abderrahmane Fares.

NAACP Urged To Display New Vigor

ATLANTA (AP)—A university president urged Wednesday "an all-out, renewed and relentless struggle" by Negroes for full rights as American citizens.
The educator, Dr. James M. Nabrit Jr. of Howard University in Washington, D.C., said, "I want my rights today—now—all of them."
Nabrit spoke at an Independence Day rally of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, holding its annual convention here.
Shortly before Nabrit's call for "freedom in our time," the intent of his message was translated into action by about 200 NAACP leaders when they approved an intensified program for civil rights in large non-Southern cities.
Five Target Areas
The first five target areas for the "task force" program are Chicago, Washington, New York, San Francisco and Detroit.
Downtown Atlanta remained quiet. A few robed Ku Klux Klan men were scattered along the streets. The NAACP did not pick

Thailand Marine Units Still Strong

UDON, Thailand (AP) — The U.S. Marine commander in Thailand served notice Wednesday that he still has a significant force in Thailand despite withdrawal of 1,000 men because of lessened tension along the Laos border.
Brig. Gen. Ormond Simpson said his remaining units total close to 2,000 men with a reinforced battalion of ground troops at the core.
In addition to the Marines, U.S. forces remaining in the country include a 2,000-man army combat infantry battle group based in the central foothills.
President Kennedy ordered the Marine withdrawal because of a general lessening of tension following the formation of a coalition government intended to insure the of Americans posted on faraway shores.

In Berlin, cut in half by a high concrete wall, Gen. Lucius D. Clay took the guest of honor salute as a parade of U.S. troops and armored equipment filed past 30,000 cheering West Berliners.
In Korea, divided by the 38th parallel, a booming 50-gun salute was fired at noon by American troops in Seoul followed by a colorful parade of international brigades under the United Nations Command.
Southeast Asia had a number of celebrations. The pro-Communist acting premier of Laos attended a U.S. Embassy party and toasted the President and American friendship. The U. S. 7th Fleet gave a show of strength on television in Bangkok. The king of the Malaya Federation sent greetings to the President from his capital of Kuala Lumpur.

Trouble Looms In Brazil

BRASILIA, Brazil (AP)—Prime Minister Auro de Moura Andrade resigned Wednesday night after 38 hours in office and Brazil was plunged into its second government crisis in eight days.
Andrade's resignation was announced by President Joao Goulart's office. A communique said the Senate conservative leader quit because he found it impossible to form a cabinet. The president and the prime minister had been reported deadlocked over a choice of navy and air force ministers.
Gen. Osvaldo Gerreira Alves, commander of the 1st Army, earlier ordered his troops in Rio de Janeiro on alert "in view of the grave situation we face."
The move was considered a warning to restive high-ranking navy and air force officers not to mix in the worsening political situation.
Besides political troubles, Brazil also faces a major economic crisis that was indirectly responsible for food shortage rioting at Niteroi Monday night.
The latest political crisis began when Prime Minister Tancred Neves' government resigned June 26 so members could qualify under the constitution for the October congressional elections. Certain high appointive officials are barred from seeking political office.

PRESIDENT KENNEDY strikes a characteristic pose as he addresses nation from Independence Hall in Philadelphia yesterday. The President called for a partnership and interdependence of the free nations of the world. (AP Wirephoto)

'Let World Know This Is Our Goal'

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — President Kennedy chose historic Independence Hall to call Wednesday for an international declaration of interdependence—a partnership with a united Europe.
"This will not be completed in a year," the President conceded, "but let the world know that this is now our goal."
Kennedy had the nation's governors among his audience—42 of them motored in this morning from Hershey, where they held their 54th annual conference.
And a crowd estimated by police at more than 100,000, plus a nationwide television and radio audience, heard Kennedy compare the efforts to unify Western Europe with the coming together of the 13 original colonies.
"Hope And Admiration"
"The United States looks on this vast new European enterprise with hope and admiration," Kennedy said. "We do not regard a strong and united Europe as a rival but as a partner."
If the partnership can be effected, Kennedy said, "We can assist the developing nations, throw off the yoke of poverty. We can balance our worldwide trade and payments at the highest level of growth. We can mount a deterrent powerful enough to pre-

Report U. S. Willing To Aid Dominican Republic

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States is preparing to offer the Dominican Republic special aid following passage of new U. S. sugar legislation affecting the economy of the one-crop Caribbean land.
The purpose of the special assistance, which may be announced Thursday, is partly financial but to a large degree political.
Kennedy administration strategists see the Dominican Republic's future as a prime example for all of Latin America in how the democratic way will stack up against the Fidel Castro communism of neighboring Cuba.
Santo Domingo is now ruled by a seven-man Council of State which took over last January, ending a generation of dictatorship established by the late Rafael L. Trujillo which left the public coffers bare.
The United States wants to help tide the new regime over until at least the end of the year when elections are scheduled.
With the help of 25 million in Alliance for Progress loans and large premium price U. S. sugar purchases diverted from Cuba, the Dominican economy was judged to have done reasonably well during the first half of this year. But a new element entered the picture with congressional passage of revamped sugar legislation this week.
The prospective new American sugar law would assign the Dominican Republic a yearly quota of 190,000 tons. With the Cuban windfall, the Dominicans had been selling at the rate of about 950,000 tons. A U. S. sugar quota means extra money in the pockets of foreign sellers because the American purchase price currently stands at $108.70 a ton, compared with a world market price of $56.
Dominicans Complain
The Dominicans have complained bitterly that Uncle Sam is letting them down. Despite past Washington declarations that the Cuban windfall would be only temporary, the Santo Domingo planners proceeded on the assumption they would receive some $100 million in sugar sales to the United States this year at a continued $60.00-ton rate.
Without the U. S. sales, the Dominicans cannot dispose of their sugar at a profit because their estimated production cost is $30 a ton, considerably above the world price.
Some sugar relief for the Dominicans may be forthcoming from a special amendment slated to come before the Senate Thursday. Beyond this, administration officials are devising various possible forms of special aid—including an outright money gift to the Dominican government budget—to help stave off a financial crisis.

Khrushchev Toasts JFK; Quips With Benny Goodman

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev drank a Fourth of July toast to friendship with the United States, then he told Benny Goodman he didn't like jazz, either American or Russian, and got into a free-wheeling discussion ranging from modern painting to Prime Minister Nehru's yoga exercises.
"I want to congratulate the American people," Khrushchev said as he made an appearance at the U. S. Embassy's Independence Day reception for the second straight year. "I wish for peace and success. That is the main thing."
Toasts Kennedy
He toasted President Kennedy, said things were getting better about Berlin, and strolled out on the lawn where he saw Goodman, visiting American jazz band leader.
Goodman started the jazz talk going as he was shaking hands with the premier under a spreading tree.
"Ah, a new jazz fan," said Goodman.
"No," said Khrushchev, smiling. "I don't like Goodman music, I like good music."
That was the way his words came out in translation. It was unlikely the premier was making a play on words.
Khrushchev indicated what he thought of jazz by saying it started out "boo boo boo boo," and he did a little jig step.
"I don't understand it," Khrushchev continued. "I don't mean just American jazz. I don't understand our own Russian jazz either."
The talk shifted to modern art as Khrushchev said:
"When I talked to President Eisenhower he said he was an amateur painter. When he talked about modern trends in painting, he said 'It makes me sick to the stomach.'"
"I said 'It's the same with me.'"
Khrushchev had hardly spoken a pleasant word about former President Dwight D. Eisenhower since Francis Gary Powers' U2 plane came down in 1960 and precipitated a diplomatic crisis. Khrushchev didn't attend the Fourth of July embassy party that year.
Khrushchev said he liked paintings in the formal Russian rugs— "There you can go and really relax."
"Artists must do strange things to get somewhere, to create," said Goodman.
"But if a man lies on his back and swings his legs in the air, is that creation?" asked Khrushchev. "What would people think if you started doing it? If I did it, they would think I was out of my mind and they would be right."
Goodman remarked that he had found Yehudi Menuhin doing yoga exercises and didn't think it was crazy in the great violinist.

Presidential Visit Busies Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — There is nothing like having the President of the United States around to dress up a July 4th celebration. Especially at Independence Hall, with most of the nation's governors looking on.
That happened in Philadelphia Wednesday—and the cradle of liberty took full advantage.
There were bands blaring, flags waving and patriotic oratory, dwelling on the words of the nation's founders.
President Kennedy flew into historic Philadelphia in a modern turbo-jet helicopter, a far cry from the horse-drawn carriages of 1776 when Thomas Jefferson's immortal declaration proclaimed liberty from the British.
A crowd of 100,000, probably more than all the residents of the original 13 colonies when the United States was born 186 years ago, jammed into the 10-square-block Independence National Park.
Flags of all the states fluttered from the sun-drenched buildings and poles on the grassy mall. Children shrieked and reached out to touch the sun-tanned, grinning President as he rode into Independence Square, then strode into the hallowed hall.
He paused at the Liberty Bell, ran his finger along the deep crack and stood silent.
Kennedy continued his stroll, glanced into the quiet room where the Constitution of the United States was made the living document it still remains.
Then he moved into the supreme court room where 42 of the nation's 54 governors of the states and territories stood in two erect lines. The President shook hands with each chief executive, exchanged brief greetings.
The governors drove in from Hershey, Pa., where they had spent the past three days at the 54th national conference, conferring on problems that mutually beset them.
They made the drive in a little over an hour, coming in a 189-car motorcade that sped along the Pennsylvania Turnpike.
Gov. David L. Lawrence of Pennsylvania presented Kennedy with three gifts; a miniature Civil War naval cannon in brass, an electric watch made by the Hamilton Co. of Lancaster, Pa., and bearing a picture of the President's two children on its face, and a replica of a Bible chest once made in colonial Pennsylvania.
State Police estimated damages to the two cars at $450. They will continue their investigation today.

State Police estimated damages to the two cars at $450. They will continue their investigation today.

Doctors Persist In Strike

REGINA, Sask. (AP)— Volunteer doctors treating emergency cases were beginning to be swamped on this fourth day of a strike by most of Saskatchewan's 700 physicians against a new compulsory medical care plan.
Five tired doctors on volunteer duty at City Hospital in Saskatoon, one of 34 emergency centers, reported their workload increased threefold. Another Saskatoon hospital, St. Paul's, reported it was handling four times the normal number of emergency cases.
The 34 emergency centers were set up by the Canadian Medical Association to provide free treatment while normal medical services are suspended. About 230 doctors were on volunteer duty.
Outside Help
The province's College of Physicians and Surgeons said 63 doctors have left Saskatchewan but a few others are coming in from other provinces and from Britain to help out.
There were growing reports of patients having to travel distances from their homes to get treatment. A woman from Gowan drove her daughter 80 miles to Regina for treatment of a suspected skull fracture suffered in a fall.
Meanwhile, both sides were rallying support as the controversy raged on with no sign of settlement.
In Ottawa, the Canadian Labor Congress accused the province's doctors of "open and brazen defiance of constituted authority." A statement said the doctors' action could be described as a mutiny.
The striking doctors claim the plan opens the way to government control of medical practice.

Western Pen Back To Normal

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Western State Penitentiary was back to normal Wednesday following the end of a sitdown revolt.

Charles Miller, 32, the last of 13 convicts who climbed the prison's water tower last week, descended Tuesday.

The 13 had protested alleged brutality in the prison's "home block."

Prison officials said only two of the 13 had originally spent time in the "home block," an isolated area used for punishment. But all 13 now will be confined there for an indefinite period, officials said.

Pay Raise Nonsense

Pay raises for Federal employees have become a kind of election-year ritual, but Washington today senses the growing impatience of the public with ever-costlier government.

And so reasons are being spawned by our officialdom that a pay raise now is a must for other than political purposes.

Arthur Goldberg, Secretary of Labor, pleads, for instance, that Federal salaries are not "competitive" with those in private industry. Yet, they are sufficient so that the Government has had no trouble hiring and keeping more than two and a quarter million head of civil servants from bee-keeping specialists to sweepers.

President Kennedy, at a news conference, took the tack that raising Government workers pay would give them more money to spend, and thus help the economy. But the money Government workers spend is money taxed away from those who earned it. If the Government just left it with them, they'd spend it, all right.

As the President hasn't had much success in persuading unions to go easy on pay raise demands so that inflation may be held at bay, perhaps he could set an example by opposing another big new raise for Government employees at this time. But perhaps he won't.

Flaw In The Tourist Plan

It's still too early to tell how much of an effect Uncle Sam's new efforts to attract foreign visitors here will have. But the "See America" campaign has shown some early gains. For the first three months of this year, there was a 13 per cent increase in tourism or 11,403 more visitors than for the same period last year.

The U. S. Travel Service, established as part of the Commerce Department one year ago last Friday, still has a long way to go in perfecting its machinery for whetting the foreigners' appetite for and smoothing his way through an American vacation. Simplified visa regulations, aid in overcoming language difficulties and special tourist brochures and maps are a fine start. If we're in the tourist business for good, everything must be done to ease the tourists' problems.

But all of the careful preparation in the world won't do any good if the foreign visitors come here under false impressions created by the U. S. Travel Service itself.

Foreign citizens with a detailed knowledge of America already have caught us in an exaggeration in our ads and posters promoting U. S. visits. They note, in particular, a claim that the visitor can see this country for about $98 a week in food, lodging and travel. This would be difficult to do in the big cities and tourist centers, as our own vacationers know. Add gifts, souvenirs and all the miscellaneous vacation costs, and the total must come to quite a bit more than that. Let's not pretend that anyone can tour the country on a shoestring—at least not with the degree of comfort those who can afford to travel expect. The average stay of the 98,000 visitors we had this year through March was 17 days and they spent an average of $520 to $540 each.

Perhaps the poor judgment in the approach to advertising is due to the newness of the project, as the director of the Travel Service indicates. But misinformation certainly won't win us any return visitors, much less friends.

Let's not lose sight of the fact that this tourist program can bring a greater return than just an improvement in our gold balance through attracting foreign exchange to our shores, though this is an important reason behind the program. It also can pay dividends by allowing more citizens of foreign countries to learn about our country and people firsthand.

It's encouraging to note the early results of this program. But if those results are to improve, we'll have to correct the early mistakes.

'Praise The Lord An Pass The Ammunition!'

By Mason Denison

Harrisburg — Pennsylvanians might as well be prepared for it — they're about to be snowed under with chronicles of the greatness and goodness of the now waning Democratic Lawrence Administration.

This is not to say that the Democratic reign of Mr. Leader and Mr. Lawrence have — or have not — been "great and good"; that isn't the point at issue at the moment.

What is to be underscored is the trumpeting of these "great and good" points (depending on how you look at it) that is about to break from the lush and plush publicity sanctuaries of the various and sundry departments on Pennsylvania's Capitol Hill.

The important point to remember is that 1962 is a campaign year — a gubernatorial campaign year, that is, and when a governorship is at stake it means throwing in the kitchen sink, the charcoal grill and the village cannon, to say nothing of any dehydrated petunia patches.

From now until the November election, Pennsylvania's citizenry will find itself subject to a growing barrage of tones chronicling the horde of accomplishments that have occurred (a) during the now nearly four years of the Democratic Lawrence Administration, and/or (b) nearly eight years of Democratic rule including that of the Leader Administration, this point dependent upon whether it can be properly fitted into the "success pattern."

The implication of course being that if all these goodies are to continue there is absolutely no other course or choice available.

The old names, Nixon and Rockefeller, are not especially inspiring. But much depends upon the 1962 Congressional elections. If the people vote in a Republican Congress, many candidates will appear for the 1964 Presidential election. That is the way of men.

In this country, most of the people are neither Liberal nor Conservative. They are just people and they vote by their likes and dislikes about men. Often history has shown they vote badly, but they always vote according to their own private interests. It is not to be expected that men and women will vote against what they believe to be their private interests.

Americans do not live by theories; they are not ideologically bound. Their interests are basically their family and its welfare. Local politicians know this well. They keep their ears close to the ground and when they hear rumblings, they do something about it.

In our country, government cannot separate itself from the people. No matter what the experts say about a situation, it must be translated into votes every second year.

And the President must realize that the rumbling now is about the men who surround him. We are coming too close to the 1962 Congressional elections for ambiguities to stand in the way of hard action.

Chronicles Of The Administration

Off The Record

By Bob Clark

Yesterday was Independence Day. The 24-hour period is designated to point out the United States' moved into a nation of its own with no strings attached.

Men have fought and died to create this freedom we enjoy today. There were other wars besides the Revolutionary War which welded the United States together. Like 1812 when the British had ideas to regrab its once proud possession; Civil War or if you prefer "War Between the States" when both North and South found they couldn't exist without one and other. And then there were the Mexican War, Spanish-American War, World War I; World War II; and Korean Conflict which in reality is still in progress in other parts of the globe.

We've pushed these disasters aside and come back for more. Ready to defend at all times a little world-freedom.

We've weathered many storms — most on the inside which tried to get into the U.S. shores. We've suffered mentally, physically and materially. But we have always managed to survive.

Historically we might call ourselves the chosen nation — destined to come out on top even though we might have lost in bodies, minds and finances.

However, that would be the easy out. Let's face it we are the wagers' dream. One of those events the bettors in 1776 would have given 1000 to 1 that we wouldn't survive on our own. But we have.

Why? Ask the man next door. He probably will not give you a direct answer. But he will talk to you and not grab a weapon and warn you down. Our secret is — despite ever-increasing obstacles — we manage to get along with ourselves.

Sure we have racial problems and bigot situations. But they will fall to the wayside like other trouble spots we have learned to conquer.

Perhaps some of the answers to our survival can be taken from an old movie cowboy hero of mine — Bill Elliott. Bill used to sway the western town residents with "Some people call me Wild Bill but I'm a peaceable sort of a man."

Try and Stop Me —by Bennet Cerf

The late Alice Duer Miller once caught a thief purloining her silverware. "What are you doing in my dining room?" she demanded. "Madam," admitted the thief, "I am at your service."

"I'll guarantee," added Miss Miller later, "that this is one criminal who won't waste his time in jail. He'll probably write his autobiography!"

At New York's Dutch Treat Club, the late Frank Crowninshield was once obliged to introduce a politician who had just been clobbered unmercifully in a bid for re-election to Congress. "Gentlemen," began Crowninshield in silky tones, "our next speaker bears a strong resemblance to the earth. You will recall that the earth is not a perfect spheroid, because it is flattened at the poles. That's precisely what happened to our next speaker."

A mousey little man was hauled into court for beating up his wife — a formidable Amazonian creature. The judge, trying to conceal a certain amount of admiration, demanded, "What came over you?" The little man explained, "Well, Your Honor, she had her back to me, the fire poker was handy, and the back door was open. So I took a chance!"

The Allen-Scott Report

Kremlin Orders Castro To Quiet Anti-U. S. Blasts

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington, July 5 — Cuban dictator Fidel Castro is under direct and explicit Kremlin orders to make two immediate far-reaching changes in policy:

Ease his bitterly strained relations with the U.S., particularly by putting a quietus on his once-frequent diatribes and other provocative activities.

The numerous Communist leaders holding key roles in his regime are to be kept in the background and out of the limelight, especially in foreign press and broadcast reports.

These stern edicts were conveyed to Castro and his henchmen by two high-placed Red officials — Polish Foreign Minister Rapacki, during his recent carefully-unpublicized visit to Havana, and Semen Bazarov, new Russian Ambassador to Mexico.

Bazarov delivered these orders to Blas Roca, secretary general of the Cuban Communist party, after reaching Mexico City. Roca flew there for that purpose.

Express reason for these extraordinary Kremlin instructions to Castro is to counter the widespread opposition in the U.S., strikingly evidenced by sentiment in Congress, to giving economic aid to Communist countries, notably Poland and Yugoslavia.

By a decisive vote the Senate barred such aid, except the sale of surplus agricultural products. The House is due to consider a similar ban next week, and its approval is certain. In fact, the House may go even further in such restrictions than the Senate, despite the strong disapproval of the Kennedy Administration.

Castro has been bluntly told that Premier Khrushchev considers U.S. economic aid urgent essential for Iron Curtain satellites, and no obstacles to their getting it are to be permitted.

Poland is seeking an additional 1.5 million tons of U.S. wheat and barley, as well as other economic aid. Other satellites also want assistance.

It is apparent that Castro's swashbuckling antics and bombastic tirades are viewed by Moscow as a hindrance to wangling much-needed U.S. food and goods, and the Cuban dictator, in effect, has been ordered to pipe down.

The Big Red Boss — Ambassador Bazarov, in spelling this out in his Mexico City talk with Blas Roca, added still another reason for this shift in Castro policy.

The Soviet envoy explained that Russia will continue to provide Cuba with as much economic help as possible. But owing to a combination of soaring demands from many other countries on the Soviet's economy and resources and critical shortages there, assistance to Cuba will have to be curtailed.

Therefore, it is imperative for Cuba to seek trade and food elsewhere, and the best place to do that is the U.S. and other Western Hemisphere countries.

So Castro was pointedly directed to moderate his tone and attitude — for his own good as well as the pressing needs of the Kremlin's satellites. Baiting the U.S. is to be soft pedaled for the time being.

Roca is now touring Latin America transmitting this new directive.

According to Bazarov, he is the most important Soviet official in the Western Hemisphere. All Iron Curtain intelligence and subversive operations are under his authority. They include agents assigned to the United Nations and Canada. In addition to Bazarov's own word on that, confirmation of this has come from other authoritative sources.

The Soviet envoy boasted of his importance at a gay party while enroute to New York on the Queen Mary.

Dining at the captain's table, he regaled the guests with colorful tales, about Russia and his experiences. Drinking heartily during and after the meal, Bazarov told two English women, between whom he was seated, that they were dining "with the most important Soviet diplomat in the Western Hemisphere."

"Do you mean you are more important than the Russian Ambassador in Washington and your representative at the United Nations?" asked one of them, the wife of an official of a large London engineering firm.

"Yes," replied Bazarov, emptying his glass. "I will be in charge, even though I will be in Mexico. You can tell your husbands that you dined not only with a very charming but an extremely important Russian diplomat. You have my word on that."

Later, he escorted the two English women to their cabins adjoining his. As they were chatting in the corridor, two heavily-armed men suddenly appeared in the doorway of Bazarov's stateroom. Startled, the women jumped back and through the open doorway saw a number of large metal cases with heavy locks.

"Ah, we have visitors," exclaimed Bazarov jocularly. "But have no fears, ladies. They are friends. I can assure you."

With that, he bowed gallantly and saw them to their cabins.

Note: Attorney General Robert Kennedy has Justice Department report that members of the Soviet staff in Washington made 14 "intelligence and reconnaissance" trips throughout the U.S. last year. They included visits to military installations, among them Midwest bases of the long-range ballistic missile Atlas.

Red Sparks — Russia is proposing a big barter deal to Japan: the exchange of 100,000 tons of Soviet anthracite coal for 100,000 tons of Japanese calcium cyanamide. Japan produces this chemically, but demand for it is falling off. So Japanese manufacturers are eager to sell to Russia. . . . Tow Yugoslavia engineers have arrived in Syria to submit studies for the construction of several bridges over the Euphrates. Yugoslavia signed a contract for these bridges to be built on long-term credits. . . . A Soviet oil exploration team is conducting extensive surveys in East Pakistan. Russia was invited to make these studies by the Pakistan government. . . . A score of Russian technicians are in Accra, capital of Ghana, to erect a big trade and industrial exhibition there. It's due to open shortly, provided the equipment and exhibits arrive as scheduled.

CUTIES

"No, no—Gertrude! NOT at the proprietor!"

George Sokolsky

The Political Months

Unfortunately, time, tides and politics wait for no man. The entire House of Representatives, a third of the Senate or more, and a number of Governors will be elected in 1962. The political campaign has already started and both aspirants more than great affairs. The Kennedy Administration must concern itself with this political situation, for should the next Congress be Republican, it might be very embarrassing.

When a President is popular, it is generally assumed that he is brilliant, little short of a genius. When his popularity begins to wane, he is regarded as a fine person surrounded by crooks, nincompoops, if not idiots.

When his popularity is gone, he is presumed to be a fool. But he is the same man whose IQ was indicative of genius. The answer to this paradox really is that the President is what he always was; two years in the White House does not change fundamental character.

Even his best friends must admit that President Kennedy's popularity has suffered severely since May 28. The President did manage to overcome the worst effects of the Cuban fiasco. In spite of all the indignation aroused over the Battle of the Bay of Pigs, President Kennedy was not blamed as much as the CIA and Allen Dulles was permitted to resign.

The steel imbroglio and the stock market debacle did hurt the President. These events gave the impression that the President did not understand the economy of the country, that he was badly advised and that the businessmen whom he consulted were not representative. This criticism could be made of any President who must depend upon experts and advisors of his own choice.

I never measure a man's abilities by his advisors because, first of all, each man is responsible for his own actions, and secondly, one never really knows whose advice is taken.

The simple fact is that whoever loses his own money is sore, particularly when he believes that the President could have taken some actions to save him. About 17,000,000 Americans have lost considerable money since May 28 and all of them are annoyed that the President did not intervene to rescue them.

The impression among working businessmen is that this Administration is tougher on business than the Roosevelt, Truman or Eisenhower Administrations were. Certainly, the last years of the Eisenhower Administration were years of numerous anti-trust suits.

However, the business community believes that the Kennedy Administration is anti-business; that the Attorney General's office is particularly unfriendly; and that local prosecuting attorneys engage in entrapments and offers of immunity to improper persons with a view to catching bigger fish.

I do not hold to the view that Robert Kennedy is that sort of person, but as long as businessmen feel that local prosecuting attorneys commit injustices in order to entrap businessmen, they grow antagonistic to the one person in the Administration who can help them.

The Republicans suffer from having no platform and few personalities. Since the Eisenhower Administration, only Senator Barry Goldwater has emerged as a new Presidential possibility.

The old names, Nixon and Rockefeller, are not especially inspiring. But much depends upon the 1962 Congressional elections. If the people vote in a Republican Congress, many candidates will appear for the 1964 Presidential election. That is the way of men.

In this country, most of the people are neither Liberal nor Conservative. They are just people and they vote by their likes and dislikes about men. In Monroe County

Business Declines From 1960 To 1961

By JEFF COX
Daily Record Staff Writer

RETAIL sales, buying power index, and net spending dollars for Monroe County declined during the period from 1960 to 1961, according to Sales Management, the magazine of marketing.

Although the county declined, some modest gains in effective buying power in Stroudsburg proper were realized.

According to the magazine estimate, the population of the county increased by 700 persons during that time. There was no population change in either Stroudsburg or East Stroudsburg.

This countywide increase was .0001 of the total population of the United States. There were 600 added households in the county, and 400 and 900 in Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg respectively. With no population increase, this means that more married families were residing in the area.

Consumer spending units in thousands went down .9 for the county and .1 for Stroudsburg. Net effective buying dollars went down $464,000 for the county, but increased slightly in Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg.

Per capita, the net dollars went down $43 for the county but increased $262 in Stroudsburg.

burg, and $193 in East Stroudsburg.

Per household, this was a decrease of $338 for the county, and a decrease of $718 and $690 in Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg respectively.

Earning Power Up

In the cash income breakdown for the county, by households, families earning under $2,500 per year and over $10,000 per year increased, while the income brackets in between these extremes decreased.

This was also true of Stroudsburg. In Stroudsburg, there was an increase of 20.8 per cent for families earning under $2,500 and an increase of 4.5 per cent for those earning over $10,000. For the county as a whole, the figures were slightly lower.

The Sales Management buying power index for the county decreased .0006 and the quality index decreased by three. In Stroudsburg, the buying power index was upped by .0001 and the quality index went up by three. This was also true for East Stroudsburg.

In the area of retail sales, all figures declined, for the county as a whole, for both Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg.

Total retail sales in Monroe County, excluding Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg, from 1960 to 1961 declined $2,314,000. Sales in Stroudsburg declined about $1,000,000 and in East Stroudsburg, almost $2,000,000.

The sales activity index showed a decrease in the county, in Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg, with the largest decrease in Stroudsburg.

Detail sales are broken down into the following categories, and the decreases shown are for the county, excluding the two boroughs: food, $79,000; eating and drinking places, $88,000; general merchandise, $54,000; apparel, $131,000; furniture and household appliances, $65,000; automotive, $965,000; gas stations, $40,000; lumber, building and hardware, $243,000 and drugs, $21,000.

Decreases in these areas were proportional for Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg, with the biggest drops being in food, automotive and general merchandise.

In those nine areas, retail sales for the county, excluding Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg, dropped $1,686,000; for Stroudsburg, the total sales in those categories dropped $980,000, and in East Stroudsburg, $1,448,000.

Accident Causes One Way Traffic

DELAWARE WATER GAP—Chief of Police Fred Decker, Delaware Water Gap, reported yesterday that one way traffic was installed as the separation of a trailer from its tractor Tuesday at 8:20 a.m. on Main St. in the borough.

He identified the driver of the tractor as Walter Berger, of East Stroudsburg.

Decker said the tractor-trailer was traveling south on Route 611 and made a left turn into Oak St. The rig separated and the brakes locked preventing the trailer from rolling back down Main St.

The trailer was loaded with 140 cases of magazines to be delivered to Waring Enterprises.

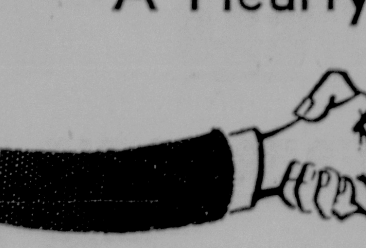

J. R. Lesoine Trucking Co. was called to lift the trailer from the highway. The crane lifted the trailer allowing the tractor to hitch up and drive away.

He estimated damages at $200 to the trailer and none to the tractor.

He added one way traffic was maintained for approximately one hour.

Monroe Firms Exporting Abroad

Record Harrisburg Bureau
HARRISBURG — Eight Monroe County industrial concerns are among 1571 Pennsylvania industries recorded as exporting products to foreign countries, according to a special "foreign trade census" just issued by the State Department of Internal Affairs.

The total volume of manufactured goods exported by these eight county companies during 1960 amounted to $350,000 — of which $281,000 was in direct exports and $69,000 exported through intermediaries.

The new "foreign trade listing", covering the year 1960, includes the following Monroe County concerns, along with the type of products each was listed as exporting:

Helco, Inc., Delaware Water Gap — photographic equipment and supplies.

Holland Thread Co., Inc., Stroudsburg — thread mills.

Kreelman Co., Herb, Cresco — radio and television transmitting, signaling, and detection equipment and apparatus.

Line Material Industries (Div. McGraw-Edison Co.), East Stroudsburg — noncurrent carrying wiring devices.

Patterson-Kelley Co., Inc., East Stroudsburg — fabricated plate work.

Ronson Corp. of Pennsylvania, Delaware Water Gap — manufacturing industries.

Shaw Insulator Co., Stroudsburg — miscellaneous plastics products.

Stroudsburg Engine Works, Inc., Stroudsburg — hoists, industrial cranes and monorail systems.

There was no indication as to the individual company's value of goods exported. However the department did note that "the foreign trade survey from which this directory was compiled obtained information for each Pennsylvania manufacturing company exporting goods worth $500 or more in 1960."

Refugee Emerges In Freedom Rally

ESCHWEDE, Germany (AP)—A 14-year-old East German boy crawled through three barbed wire fences across the Iron Curtain border near here yesterday and landed in a rally of fellow refugees who had reached the West years before him, police reported yesterday.

The refugees had assembled for a memorial meeting on a hilltop from which they could see the border village of Ifta they had fled several years ago. Shortly after lighting a bonfire, they saw a bruised and bleeding boy walking up to them in a torn shirt.

Police said the boy told them he decided to flee to the West after being accused of spreading

Stroudsburg Man Named Scranton Aide

THE former president of the Pennsylvania Junior Chamber of Commerce has joined the staff of William W. Scranton, Republican candidate for governor. William D. Johnson, of Fifth St., Stroudsburg, will join the Scranton Campaign for Governor as a staff assistant.

The 36-year-old Johnson served as state president of the Jaycees until May, 1962, when his term expired.

The operator of a gas, oil, auto repairs business in Stroudsburg, Johnson will join the Scranton campaign immediately and will do extensive traveling across the commonwealth in connection with the campaign.

In 1953, Johnson interrupted his high school education, during which he had been elected class president and starred in athletics, to serve three years in the United States Navy. Later he enlisted in the United States Air Force Reserve as a Staff Sergeant.

Back as a civilian, Johnson went to work as a foreman and buyer for a Pocono firm. In the meantime, he attended night school and completed requirements for his high school diploma in 1957.

Went Into Business
Ten years ago the youthful veteran ventured into business on his own when he purchased a gasoline station, which he expanded to include automotive repairs. Late in 1960 he opened a newly-constructed automotive service-repair center in Stroudsburg.

Johnson joined the Jaycees in 1964. A year later he was elected chapter secretary and played a key role in organizing "Jaycee Flood Relief" when the Delaware River area was swept by a flash flood that claimed more than 100 lives and caused millions of dollars in property damage.

Johnson helped spearhead rescue operations and when the floods receded he served as coordinator of a relief program.

The new appointee to the Scranton staff has served the State Junior Chamber in numerous capacities as a regional vice president, national director, administrative vice president and executive president before being elected president of the statewide organization in May of 1960.

Councilmen Attend Convention

WILLIAM H. Schnaitman and Kenneth W. Wiley, councilmen from the sixth and third wards, respectively, East Stroudsburg, attended the 51st annual boroughs convention in Pittsburg recently.

Guest speakers were Sen. Jack Miller, Iowa, and Gov. David L. Lawrence.

In addition to speakers, meetings and sessions were conducted to discuss the prevailing wage not, planning and renewal, inter-municipal cooperation, borough finance and related subjects.

Paratroopers Hung In Trees

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—South Viet Nam and its U.S. military advisers are studying ways to get paratroopers down out of trees faster.

In one airborne operation 500 Vietnamese paratroopers were dropped from 900 feet over dense jungle north of here. Two-thirds of the men were hung up in trees. It took nearly half an hour to get most of them in action.

Luckily, the dangling paratroopers were not exposed to any heavy enemy fire. Casualties were negligible.

The 50-foot litters paratroopers carry to getting out of trees often prove inadequate. Trees are sometimes 100 feet high.

Parachute experts have studied British parachute gear of the type used in Malayan air drops, including a system of spools from which a dangling trooper can play out his line as he descends from a tree. The spools generally are considered too cumbersome for use in South Viet Nam.

In heavily forested areas where there are neither roads nor canals and where helicopters cannot land, airborne operations are considered vital.

Vietnamese units are equipped with large parachutes designed for Americans. The light Vietnamese roopis descend more slowly than their weighty U. S. advisers, and even light winds blow the Vietnamese paratroopers away from the drop zone.

Head-On Crash Kills 1, Hurts 3

HANOVER, Pa. (AP)—A head-on auto crash in suburban Penn. Twp., yesterday killed Mrs. Leona Bittle, 46, of Spring Grove D.D. 2, and caused injury to four others.

Still hospitalized but in satisfactory condition Monday were the victim's husband, Merle R. Bittle, 52; son, Barry Bittle, 12; and the driver of the other car, Larry R. Shadle, 24, of New Oxford R.D. 1.

Township police said Barry Bittle told them Shadle swung out to overtake another car and collided with the car his father was driving. Jay Bittle, 11, required only first aid attention.

Lobby Holding Back Aid Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Elmer J. Holland, D-Pr., yesterday blamed what he called a powerful wealthy lobby with helping hold the administration's medical aid to the aged bill in committee.

"I had thought this bill would be out of committee by now," said Holland, "but the lobby has managed to flood the halls of Congress with mail against the bill."

Consequently, he said, members of the House Ways and Means Committee are "not fully convinced that the people of the country are for the bill."

Couple Killed In Truck Crash

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP)—Carl Knapp, 54, and his wife, Alice, 55, Sharpville, Pa., were killed and a woman critically injured yesterday in a truck-auto collision southwest of here.

Injured was Mrs. Theresa de Noble, 51, also Sharpville. She was a passenger in the Knapps' auto.

Truck driver Bruce Covington, 51, Taylor, Mich., first reported killed was not seriously hurt.

The Northwest salmon industry centers in Seattle.

Soviet Tourists Smash Fenders

PARIS (AP)—Soviet tourists are now coming to France in private automobiles.

But even in cars, the tourists stick together.

Some of the cars were much too close together yesterday. A convoy of nine was headed toward Fontainebleau. One slowed down. The following car hit it. Both cars stopped and two more cars piled up. Bent fenders were the principal damage.

Nigerian Rainfall

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP)—June was the wettest month Nigeria has experienced since records were started 60 years ago. The meteorological office said yesterday 42.8 inches of rain fell last month. The previous high was 42.2 inches in June, 1958.

Londoners Loose

LONDON (AP)—Londoners were less careless about forgetting things—especially their umbrellas—on the public transports last year, the Lost Property Division reports. It says they left 376,000 articles on buses and subways in 1961—a third of them umbrellas. The number of forgotten items in 1961 was a dropoff of 31,000 from 1960.

By noting variations between predicted low and the actual low temperature, an amateur can arrive at a correction factor that will enable him to beat the expert at forecasting weather for his own backyard.

Area Pastor Accepts Coal Region Call

BANGOR—Rev. Roland Catterall, pastor of the Bangor Presbyterian Church has been called to the pastorate of the Mountaintop Presbyterian Church, near Wilkes-Barre.

A special congregational meeting has been called for July 15 to recommend to Lehigh Presbytery that Rev. Catterall be released. The release date is Sept. 1. He had been the pastor of the Bangor church since 1956.

The Rev. Catterall was born in Scranton and is a graduate of Lafayette College and Princeton Theological Seminary.

Prior to coming to this area the Rev. Catterall served as assistant minister of Two Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia, for two years.

Two Die In Fiery Crash

DOYLESBURG, Pa. (AP) — A car swerved off Route 75, plunged over an embankment and burst into flames last night, killing two Doylesburg men.

The victims were identified as Jay O'Donel, 26, and Leroy Hockberry. Both were hurled from the car as it went over the embankment one mile north of the Juniata-Franklin County line.

New Aide At Depot Appointed

THE U. S. Army Dispensary at Tobyhanna Signal Depot has a new administrative officer, Second Lieutenant Gerald Weinstein, a native of Richmond, Virginia.

Lieutenant Weinstein replaces Captain John B. Noone, who is leaving soon for a new duty station. The assignment at Tobyhanna is the Lieutenant's first since entering the Army in April of this year.

The new dispensary officer is a graduate of the Medical College of Virginia School of Pharmacy. He is 24 years of age, and single.

Wind Gap Pair On Probation

CLAUDE H. Bender, 23, and Edwin R. Laudenbach, 24, both of Wind Gap, RD 1, were placed on three years' probation after receiving suspended sentences in Northampton County Court.

They pleaded guilty to charges of burglary and larceny June 11. The charges were brought for breaking into the home of Charles Farnack, Bushkill Twp., March 31. A pistol was stolen. The pair was ordered to make restitution for a door which was damaged in Farnack's residence.

Sen. Clark All But Misses JFK

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Pennsylvania's Democratic Sen. Joseph S. Clark almost lost out as one of the official greeters when President Kennedy was deposited by helicopter a block from Independence Hall yesterday.

Clark was standing in front of the hall watching the helicopter circle for the landing. As it came down Clark hurried forward, asking a policeman, "where's the escort car?" He was told it already had left.

Only quick work by Anthony Zecca, chief public relations man for the city representative, spared Clark further embarrassment. Zecca got a motorcycle policeman with sidecar to deliver the senator to the right place in time to welcome the President.

New Trial In Derailment Case

NORRISTOWN, Pa. (AP) — A new trial was ordered Monday for James M. Johnson, 50, convicted twice of first-degree murder for causing a 1948 derailment which killed two crewmen. Once he was sentenced to death, the second time to life imprisonment.

Montgomery County Judge Daniel L. Quinlan ordered the new trial, agreeing with defense arguments that Johnson's prior record of tampering with rails should not have been introduced at the trial.

Johnson was accused of pulling spikes from the rails before the crash of the Reading Railroad train near Valley Forge in May, 1948.

He was an itinerant farm worker from Pocomoke City, Md.

'Miracle Worker' Termed Miracle For Theatre Goers

By Gloria S. Randolph
MOUNTAINHOME — Opera goers like to say they attend performances to "hear" an opera, the television audience is usually referred to as a group of "viewers," a radio announcer talks to "listeners," people "watch" movies, and "see" plays. If you attend a performance of this week's production at the Pocono Playhouse, you will be privileged to "experience" a miracle.

Rosena Stevens, producer-manager of the Playhouse, is presenting William Gibson's play, "The Miracle Worker," with a superb cast, beautifully imaginative settings, and excellent direction. This is the finest kind of theatre, a sensitive play given truly rich theatrical values.

A miracle is defined as an effect in the physical world which surpasses all known human powers. This play is so beautifully constructed that the members of its audience are given an awareness of the story, not only through their senses of hearing and seeing, but also through their imagination. The members of this cast are actually able to communicate the magic of a dramatic experience.

The secret of writing a good play probably lies in just how much is stated; how much is left for the audience to imagine, and in the sense create, for themselves. "The Miracle Worker" is well-written because Gibson has artfully chosen just enough of the story to present a creative challenge to an audience. Of course, in the story of Helen Keller there is a deep spiritual theme and all that we will ever be able to understand of it will be limited to our meagre understanding of any of life's marvels.

As Annie Sullivan, Teresa Hughes expresses the strength and the humility of a truly great person. Her portrayal is more than believable; it is real. As the child, who is only communicative sense of touch, Peggy Burke's spontaneous reactions and her ability to project feelings are incredible. Because of the special talents of Miss Hughes and Peggy Burke and Richard Via's very sensitive direction, the observer feels drawn into each scene.

Shirley Wilber and George Ebeling give a realistic picture of disturbed parents whose loyalties and values are unbalanced by the insurmountable problem of the child. Bruce W. Stark is convincing as Helen's older half-brother who seeks love and self-confidence in the tormented atmosphere of the Keller home.

Blanche Worthey, Denise and Jonathan Worthey give very warm natural performances as a loyal servant and her children. Jonathan especially good at showing a child's wise acceptance of the handicapped girl for what she is. In other roles Ruth Hope, James Dukas, and Gene Stuckmann all give genuine characterizations. There isn't anything incompetent about this presentation, and the technical staff deserves compliments on its efficiency, too.

Perhaps the most remarkable thing of all about the play is that it is never dreary. It is so full of human vitality and uplifting spiritual qualities that it is truly inspirational entertainment. Even if you don't believe in miracles, see it — you will.

'The Music Man' Scheduled Next At Pocono Playhouse

"The Music Man," America's happiest musical will be the next attraction at Pocono Playhouse, Mountainhome, with Robert Couden and Leigh Green in starring roles.

Robert Couden

The musical is scheduled for a two weeks run beginning Monday night July 9 through Saturday July 21.

The most important thing to be said about "The Music Man" is that it was a whopping hit on Broadway for four years and winner of N. Y. Drama Critics' award.

Meredith Willson, eminent musicologist of the air waves, reached back into his boyhood days in creating the musical and came up with this heart warming song and dancer production.

It is a nostalgic and familiar yarn of the "con" man who comes to fleece the population of a small town, who tries to regenerate himself, and by accident, the customers.

The show has blare and brass, it jiggles and jumps, it has speed and style and its people are beguiling.

Starred In Other Musicals
Robert Couden, who plays the role of a song-and-dance man of parts in the playhouse production, has had starring roles in many musicals, including "My Fair Lady," "Mr. Winkle's Holiday" and an extensive tour of "The Music Man."

He will be joined by Leigh Green as co-star, a young lady who is similarly gifted as a performer and singer.

Among the large and excellent supporting cast will be Art Wallace, Adria Rice, Jessie Foster, Edie Murfi, Arthur Tell, Grant Walden and Eddy Regan, Joe Kirkland, Roland Ireland, Bruce Carrithers, the latter four, as members of the barbershop quartet, "The Mavericks". Also included will be 7 year old Scott Bloom who has won rave reviews in the role of Winthrop Paroo. A talented group of singers and dancers of note add to the enjoyment, "Music Man" is directed and staged by Kermit Kogley. Matinees are scheduled on Wednesdays and Saturdays during the two weeks, at 2:40 p.m. Reservations for seats may be made by phoning 596-7456 or at Pocono Playhouse-box-offices in Scranton, Wilkes-Barre and Honesdale, Pa. Patrons residing in Bethlehem, Allentown, Easton and Phillipsburg may dial Enterprise 1-0899, toll free.

Miss Joyce Knies, Philadelphia, is spending several weeks with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kresge.

Green Thumb Summer Gardening Tips

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

ROSE WOES: Ever have this trouble with roses? When new shoots get to about 6 to 8 inches along, the tips flop over or "buckle" under the buds. This is the work of the rose midge, a tiny fly rarely seen except by the trained eye. The tiny yellow-brown fly lays eggs in flower and leaf buds and their small, white to orange larvae ("maggots") eat into the tips of the young shoots, causing the buds to blacken and die.

Later in the summer the tips of the new shoots die when only a few inches long. Flowering practically ceases and continuous killing of new shoots prevents any increase in height of the plant, although it may bush out considerably. Wilty, droopy buds is tell-tale evidence of rose midge trouble.

REMEDY: This serious pest is readily killed with DDT as dust or spray, two to three doses at 7 to 10-day intervals. As added preventative measure, mix 4 ozs. of 50 percent wettable DDT with 5 gal. of water and apply this amount of solution to each 100 sq. ft. of rose bed. This will control any maggots which may have dropped to the ground. Also, clip back any twigs or stems which show droopy buds and tips, and burn them.

ROTTING OF PANSIES: When pansies start out nice, then plant after plant turns yellow and dies, many a green thumb feels blue. This trouble is due to some dreaded jaw-breaking fungi disease such as fusarium wilt, Rhizoctonia or Phythium root rot. When you buy plants from a florist they may be disease-free, but the ground you plant them in may be loaded with the fungus.

There is no control once infection starts, but you can do a lot to prevent future trouble by sterilizing your pansy bed with methyl bromide, or by drenching the soil with terrachlor and panodrench. Start pansy seeds in sterilized soil, and be sure to dust your seeds with Captan before sowing.

PINE NEEDLE MULCH: Are they o. k. for shrubs, strawberries, etc? Yes, pine needles make a good mulch material, being resistant to decay, disease-free and less likely to be troubled by moles or mice. Pine needles are a fire hazard when dry, and that's their only drawback.

CALADIUMS: This item likes a cool, moist soil, never one that's soggy. Too much water will cause the leaves to turn yellow and wilt. It's natural for the caladium to grow lustily in summer, then die down in fall, go dormant through the winter months. Water freely in dry weather and grow in a partially shaded spot.

At first sign that the plant is going to rest this fall, gradually dry off the tubers and keep in a dry cellar until March when they can be started up again. You can even divide tubers in spring. Cut them into sections, dust with sulfur and plant in a mixture of peat and sand. Start in a 70 to 75 deg. room. JAPANESE MAPLES: This is the time of year I receive questions about Japanese Maples. What causes the leaves to dry up? This is not a pest problem, but due to sun-scorching of the tender foliage. Dry weather and dry soils results in dried leaf-edges, as well as holes in the foliage. Japanese Maples leaf out early and even early spring frost will scorch the tender leaves. By summer, the foliage usually is hardened sufficiently enough to stop scorching.

What brings on the dead wood you often find in this handsome tree? Usually it's winterkilling since the Japanese Maple isn't reliably hardy in cold regions. These dead parts should be cut out if you haven't already done so. Are you nonplussed about the color changes from red to olive green and back again in fall?

Japanese Maples do change color ors and apparently it's due to changes in temperature. Some remain an olive-green all summer, and some remain a bright red. Nothing that I know can be done to make them stay a bright red. Trees growing in a shaded location are more apt to be an olive-green than those in bright sun.

DELPHINIUMS AGAIN: Can you save seed from husky plants and grow them on? Yes, even seed from a hybrid delphinium would be satisfactory, although I'd rather see you invest a few cents and buy seed from a reliable grower. Sow the seed in a cold-frame any time now, or you can sow in a row in the garden. Young plants will winter over and can be transplanted in the spring.

Old clumps of delphinium are easily divided by taking a shovel and cutting off a section. Each division should have 3 or 4 shoots, and should be replanted immediately in a well-prepared soil.

If your delphinium blossoms are stunted and maked with black streaks, this is known as "Blacks," caused by cyclamen mites. Dust your plants with Kelthane, Aramite, or Sulfur to check the pest. Growing delphiniums near strawberries will encourage mite infestations since this fruit is also host to the mite.

CRABAPPLES: One of my readers writes: "Last year my Bechtel crab was losing many of its leaves and I thought it would never live. You suggested treating it with Captan beginning early this spring. The tree has healthy leaves now and it had bushels of blooms. I mention this because nearly all crabapples develop the disease."

Green Thumb note: Apples and all members of the apple family are highly susceptible to various leaf spot diseases which cause foliage to yellow and drop. Captan does a fine job checking these, but the secret is to start early and keep foliage well covered.

Question Box

QUESTION OF THE WEEK: M.Y. of Stroudsburg: "I've just repotted a splitleaf philodendron, using garden soil and a clay pot. Now there is a green mold on the soil and I fear it will kill the plant. Do soils 'wear out' and become sour or over-acid in such a short time?"

Mold on the surface indicates poor aeration or poor drainage, rather than a lack of fertility. It doesn't necessarily mean an acid

It's hard to say without checking the bark. Skin off a bit and see if green tissue is beneath. If so, there is life left, and the tree should grow. Some items such as wisteria take 6 months or so before they break dormancy and start growth. I have a wisteria planted 4 will live. Trimming back a newly planted tree or shrub by 1/3 is a must because it breaks dormancy and starts growth.

Just Between Us---

By Bobby Westbrook

Unless over-eating could be termed dangerous I had a safe and very happy Fourth of July. Primarily because of the bring-the-family clam bake Tom and Henri Metzgar had in their back garden with the roses for a back drop — shade and sun and just enough breeze and food enough to last me for a week.

Having no immediate family of my own available, it was fun to be able to catch up on other people's families and how they've grown and matured since last I saw them. Nowadays there are so few occasions when you really get to see a whole family. Clubs, classes, parties and even church organizations tend to shuffle people into age groups rather than family groups.

So the rest of us miss getting to know our friends' children most of the time, unless they happen to be of the same age as our own children.

And speaking of our own children, everybody warned me and I fully expected a big black slump after the wedding and slumped Pete went back to Fort Lewis in Washington. But it still hasn't come. Partly because things have been so busy and partly because my own generation of family is still here.

But mostly because the children themselves are where they want to be. Well, I don't know whether an army bachelor officers quarters is where Peter would most want to be in the world, but after the pre-wedding twittering of a doveote of bridesmaids and the post-wedding vagaries of a totally disorganized household, it must be a relief to get back to a masculine, ordered, meals-on-time, and everything-in-its-place routine.

And certainly I wouldn't wish Nancy and Ron back from Nassau a minute before they have to leave. Besides, after waiting for the catastrophe that always happens at every wedding it was almost a relief when it finally did.

Oh not at the wedding, but the wedding trip when, while the newly-weds flew to Nassau, the bride's trousseau took off on a little side trip of its own — to London, if you please. It was the touch of tragic-comedy which every wedding needs to make it distinctive and really perfect.

Besides when Peter gets locked in the house by mistake and Nancy ends up on a honeymoon with nothing but a beach bag, I know that the propensity for landing in unexpected situations can be inherited; and that no matter how big and independent they may grow, these are really mine.

Miss Alice Jean Strunk Bride Of Frank Manhart

Christ Episcopal Church in Stroudsburg was the setting for the wedding of Miss Alice Jean Strunk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Strunk, Sr., of 1114 Dreher Ave., Stroudsburg, to Frank A. Manhart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin H. Manhart, of 1125 North Ninth St., Stroudsburg. Rev. Charles A. Park performed the double ring ceremony on June 23 at 2 p. m.

Against a background of white gladioli and white daisies in the altar vases. Musical background was provided by Richard Matlock, organist, and Durrel Mader, soloist, who sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "O Perfect Love."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of silk organza and Chantilly lace. The lace bodice featured a square scalloped neckline. The organza skirt was trimmed with Chantilly lace roses and two tiers of the lace, ending in a chapel train. Her two-tiered veil fell from a crown of seed pearls and Chantilly lace. She carried a white Bible with white roses and lily of the valley.

Miss Lois E. Manhart, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor. She wore a dress of flower green silk organza with a bodice of Chantilly lace. The skirt was of silk organza with three tiers of organza falling from two roses at the back. She wore a headpiece to match and carried a white basket filled with delphiniums, carnations and baby's breath.

Barbara L. Strunk was bridesmaid and Carol Ann Strunk was junior bridesmaid. Both are sisters of the bride. Barbara wore a dress of the same style as the bride. The bridegroom's grandmother, Mrs. George Galloway, of Moscow, wore a blue silk print dress with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

A reception for 120 guests was held in the parish hall following the ceremony. The hall was decorated with white wedding bells, apricot and flower green streamers. The four-tiered wedding cake was topped by a miniature bride and groom.

For traveling the bride wore a pink and white pique sheath dress with white accessories and a corsage of white roses.

They will make their home in Tannersville. The bride, a 1962 graduate of Stroud Union High School, is employed at the Giant Market. Her husband, who was graduated from Stroud Union High School in 1961, is employed at Shaw Insulator Co.

When you are sitting the dry ingredients in making a standard two-cup flour biscuit recipe, add a teaspoon of curry powder. Serve with chicken — fried, roasted or broiled.

If your pie crust is tough you may have added too much water; over-mixed after the water was added; used insufficient shortening, or cut in the shortening too fine.

Kitchen thrift: you can fry chicken in ham as well as bacon fat.

When you are planning to broil flank steak, before cooking you may want to pound the meat with the edge of a heavy saucer across the grain of the meat. This pounding will break the fibers and help make the meat tender. Two other aids to tenderness: a very short broiling time and carving in thin diagonal slices.

Always remove the tubes and membrane from kidneys before washing.

Mr. and Mrs. William D. Oster

Oster-Hawley Wedding At Church In Paoli

Joyce Bond Hawley, of Malvern, RD 2, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Bond, of Stroudsburg, RD 5, was married on April 28 at 2 p. m. in the First Presbyterian Church of Paoli to William D. Oster, son of Mrs. Mildred Oster and the late William T. Oster, of 9 Sandy Lane, Malvern.

Rev. Ralph E. Osborne performed the double ring ceremony before an altar decorated with white gladioli and snapdragons. Mrs. John C. Stroh was organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a dress of white organza over ice blue net. The floor-length skirt had a full overskirt. The fitted bodice was fashioned with a sabrina neckline outlined with sequins and seed pearls. Her shoulder-length ice blue veil was held in place by a crown trimmed with pearls. She carried a bouquet with an orchid center surrounded by white roses.

Mrs. Claude Bunting, sister of the bride, of Stroudsburg, RD 5, was matron of honor. Miss Helen Mosteller, of Upper Darby, was bridesmaid. They wore street-length dresses of lavender organza over silk with matching headpieces of a flower and circle veil. They carried cascade bouquets of yellow roses and carnations.

Robert Oster was his brother's best man and Barry Wayne Bond, brother of the bride, ushered.

The bride's mother wore a floral street-length dress with white accessories and a white orchid corsage. The bridegroom's mother wore a pink street-length dress of lace over silk with white accessories and a corsage of white orchids.

A reception for 100 guests was held at Teddell's in Paoli before the newlyweds left for a trip through the Southern States.

The bride, a graduate of Stroudsburg High School, is typist at the Deluxe Check Printing Co. in Paoli. Her husband, a graduate of West Chester High School, is employed in the shipping department of Bishops Co. in Frazer. They are making their home in Kayes Mobile Home Court, Malvern.

THE WYCKOFF
SHOPPER

One thing I like about Wyckoff's is the fact that you can never possibly see everything that's for sale, and you're bound to find many things here that you wouldn't find in any other store on the Main Street of a rural town.

For instance . . . I am sure one could search high and low even in New York City without finding straw masks from Mexico. But we have 'em . . . by the dozen, and they're so horrible they're cute. These masks occupy part of a big table at the foot of our Teamoom steps and everytime Amy Eilenberger of our Notions department glances toward it, it brings back memories of the day she purchased many of these novelties at a market in a Mexican village, accompanied by Walter and Migis Wyckoff.

I suppose the masks are primarily intended as decoration for a wall but they could be worn. Some are natural straw . . . some are in color. All have tiny holes for the eyes to peer through, shaped noses into which you attempt to fit your own proboscis, and a heavy outgrowth of wicked-looking wisps representing beard, hair, and eyebrows. As Peter Wyckoff and I were studying them the other day, one of our women customers held one up to her face and demanded of her husband how he liked it. "It's an improvement," he said, and she laughed. Whether she was still laughing when she got him outside, I have no idea . . . but in any case she couldn't have taken him seriously because she didn't invest 1.19 to own one.

On the same table, we have an array of straw bags that are very excellent quality for the money. One style, shaped like a rectangular lunch box with two handles, is 1.69. Of better quality is a larger, firmly woven handbag with leather hinged-and-fastened lid, two leather straps, and a attractive straw decoration at 3.98. For the little girl, there are round handbags that dangle from a straw string-handle, upon which the lid slides to be raised and lowered. This is quite desirable, for one can never lose the top. These sell for 75c.

Of course, my favorite baskets are not of the handbag variety. Instead they are BIG, bright, and smooth, woven in a circular manner from circular reeds firmly secured together. These stand high, have convenient handles, and can be used to pack things in which traveling, for keeping the children's toys together, for hiding old magazines and newspapers—or even dirty laundry—from view. The price is 7.98, and most attractive has a Mexican peasant design.

Also from Mexico are some of the cutest sun hats I've seen this Summer. Inverted cones of fabric in solid color, they are generously ornamented with colorful strawberries, figures, and flowers. Corinne Nelson was wearing one as she worked the other day, and she looked adorable. Of course, she's a pretty girl hat or no hat . . . but in any case, these are youthful, flattering, and amusing. Real mad . . . real fun-lovin' sun lovin' hats at 1.50 each.

Another thing one wouldn't find in just any store on Main Street, U.S.A., can be seen suspended above the center aisle in the Gift department . . . an Oriental parasol priced at just 1.98. Nearby in the same department are happy-faced piggy banks, with piggy standing upright. These are 59c, and one should really shop every Wyckoff department with one under his arm. Then, as fast as he buys, he should deposit all the coins saved by shopping HERE, where the prices are so reasonable.

One of the things offered at a big saving are envelopes of scenic slides, ten to a package, in full color, regularly 1.75 now 99c. There are six different packets: four groups of the Pocono Mountains; one group of Buck Hill Falls, and one of Pennsylvania, showing Bushkill Falls. As Pete says, whether you're a visitor or a local yokel you'll find the selections delightful, and would never in a lifetime be able to make such excellent photographic studies with your own camera.

New from Poland are leather change purses at 1.50 and spectacle cases to match at 1.00, and for your home or cabin we have a big new selection of Frankoma Pottery priced from 60c for ash trays to 6.98 for vases and pitchers.

All this!—and I've only covered about one third of JUST THE CENTER AISLE. Why not come in and join our Treasure-Pleasure Hunt?

Red China Says Border Violated

TOKYO (AP) — Communist China charged Monday Indian planes and ground troops repeatedly violated the border during May, the New China News Agency said. The Peiping government lodged a serious protest June 28 and demanded the Indian government immediately stop intrusions into Communist China's territory, it added.

The broadcast said 59 sorties by Indian aircraft across the border were verified through repeated investigations.

Angels Take AL Lead As Yanks Split

Score 4-2 And 4-1 Victories Over Nats

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Los Angeles Angels grabbed first place in the American League race today as they swept a doubleheader from the Washington Senators, 4-2 and 4-1.

Ken McBride won his seventh straight in the opener, with an assist from Dean Chance. Ted Bowsfield went 7-3 in the nightcap, his longest outing of the season, and won with the help of Art Fowler.

Leon Wagner, the league's leading home run hitter, hit a drive over the center field fence for his 24th homer of the season. He is the first American League player to hit a homer in every park. His drive opened the scoring in the third inning of the nightcap and came with Billy Moran on base and two out.

Gil Torres hit his fourth homer in the fourth inning of the second game following a leadoff single by Bob Rodgers. Lee Thomas hit his 11th homer for the Angels in the opener.

The Senators, trailing 4-0 after seven innings of the second game, scored on Chuck Cottier's one-out homer.

Tigers Lose Two

CLEVELAND (AP)—Don Dillard slammed a grand slam homer in the 13th inning to power Cleveland to a 6-2 nightcap triumph and a doubleheader sweep over the Detroit Tigers Wednesday after Jim Perry pitched a five-hit, 1-0 victory in the 10-inning opener.

Cleveland loaded the bases with none out in the 13th. Chuck Essegian, hitless in eight trips, singled to left off loser Jerry Casale (1-2). Woodie Held drew a walk. Jerry Kindall bunted toward third, but Steve Boros' throw to second on an attempted force was too late.

Then Dillard whacked a pitch over the 365-foot marker on right field fence to send the 21,277 fans home happy. Gary Bell (6-5), who pitched brilliantly in three innings of relief, was the winner of the 4-hour and 6-minute game.

The Indians won the first game on a pinch hit single.

CHICAGO (AP)—Juan Pizarro, cushioned by a four-run third inning, spaced six hits Wednesday in hurling the Chicago White Sox to a 5-2 victory over Baltimore. The Orioles took the opener of the doubleheader 7-3 with a barrage of 13 hits.

One of the hits off Pizarro, who struck out four and walked one in padding his record to 6-7, was Brooks Robinson's No. 14 homer in the fourth.

The Orioles scored their other run in the first when Johnny Temple singled, went to third on Jim Gentile's single and came in on Robinson's sacrifice fly.

Luis Aparicio, who collected a homer, double and single in the first game, led off the nightcap with a double for his only hit. Bob Sadewski's fly sent him to third and he raced home on Chuck Estrada's wild pitch.

BOSTON (AP)—Boston's Lu Clinton went on a batting rampage for seven straight hits and hammered the Red Sox into a doubleheader split with Minnesota 8-5 Wednesday after the Twins won the opener 8-4.

The reserve Sox outfielder grounded out his first time up then collected two homers, two doubles and three singles, drove in four runs and scored five.

Clinton stalked Gene Conley to his ninth triumph of the year in the nightcap.

Conley, who got late relief from Dick Radatz, hit a sacrifice fly in his own case and Carl Yastrzemski contributed a solo homer.

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Yankees, fumbling and feeble in the opener, bombed out four home runs—two by Mickey Mantle and one by Roger Maris—in the nightcap to gain a doubleheader split with the Kansas City Athletics Wednesday. The A's won the first 11-1, and the Yankees took the second 7-3.

The Yankees, as a result, surrendered first place to the Los Angeles Angels, who won a pair from the Washington Senators.

All the Yankee runs in the second game came on homers and the A's got two the same way.

The A's jumped off to a 2-0 lead when Ed Charles lashed out a tremendous inside-the-park homer, scoring Manny Jimenez.

The Yankees got the equalizing runs off starter Dan Pfister in the fifth when Mantle hit his 14th homer with Bobby Richardson aboard.

Frank Howard drove in seven runs, five of them in the opener with a single and a bases-loaded double. Teammate Tommy Davis drove in five and ran his RBI total to 87—highest in the majors.

Left-hander Sandy Koufax, supported by 18 hits, pitched a five-hitter in the opener and picked up his 12th victory in 16 decisions.

Koufax, who pitched a no-hitter Saturday against New York, struck out 10 and extended his streak of scoreless innings to 18 before Ted Savage homered in the seventh. This was the 40th time in Koufax's career he had fanned 10 or more in one game.

Reds Win 8-6

CINCINNATI (AP)—A sparkling play by Leo Cardenas checked off a Chicago rally in the eighth inning and enabled the Cincinnati Reds to hang on Wednesday for an 8-6 victory over the Cubs.

Cardenas' stop and throw on Billy Williams' grounder for the third out came after the Cubs had scored four times and just after Jim Brosnan had taken over as the third Cincinnati pitcher in the inning. There were two on base.

The Reds and starter Jim Maloney went into the eighth with an 8-2 lead but he Cubs got two hits and two runs off Maloney and then rapped reliever Bill Henry for two more runs before Brosnan appeared.

STANTON, Del. (AP)—Gordon R. Potter, trainer of Crinson

Leroy Smith Paces S-Burg To Upset Win Over Lakers

THE STRODSBURG A's, behind the 6-hit pitching and hitting of Leroy Smith, fashioned its own upset victory yesterday in Pocono Mountain League as they blanked league leading Saylorburg 2-0 on the loser's field.

Smith, who had been used sparingly this season because of a little arm trouble, showed no to third place two games from front runners.

Fast Start

Stroudsburg got off to a 1-0 lead in the initial frame when

Clausen doubled and scored on Smith's double. Doug Price grounded out and Jack Sommers fanned to end the inning.

In the third, Clausen again reached second on two consecutive errors by the Lakers. Viechnicki got a base hit sending one through shortstop for an error and Clausen raced home. The Lakers tallied five errors.

Clausen to third. Smith flew out to right but Price smacked

Bill Altomose suffered the defeat after working eight innings. He gave up six hits and two runs, one of which was earned.

West End Wins

West Tnd, with Dennis Lakatos

hurling a 5-hitter, took a 6-0 lead before Reeder broke the ice. The losers scored twice in the eighth with Larry Wood-ling's double being the big blow.

Reeder's C. Beseker was charged with the loss. He worked 5 1/3 innings, gave up 7 hits, fanned three and walked two.

Lakatos struck out 11 Reeder men.

Bowmanstown had a huge celebration during its July 4th encounter as it walked to a 30-1

Russians Grab Racing Contests

By LEE LINDER
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Russia's powerful rowers captured the July 4th spirit of the United States Wednesday, defeating America's oarsmen in all three special international races in the Schuylkill River regatta.

The Soviets won the singles and doubles sculls over two other entries and swept to an easy triumph in the eight-oar shells against five competing American crews.

Despite obvious disappointment, a crowd estimated by Police Commissioner Albert Brown at over 45,000 roared approval as the grinning Russian athletes accepted their medals with the USSR national anthem blaring over the loudspeaker.

The distance in all the races was 2,000 meters, the official Olympic route which is slightly

Trenton Race Plans To Corral Stars

DETERMINED to corral the entire 33-car starting lineup of the 1962 Indianapolis "500" for his history-making 150-mile USAC national championship race featuring Indianapolis Speedway 500 roadster cars at the Trenton Speedway July 22, Sam Nunn added sensational Don Davis of Phoenix, Arizona to other great stars signed earlier.

Davis, holder of a world speed record he posted in qualifying for the 100-mile race at Trenton, April 8, also set another record, at 139.768-mph, in flashing to fourth finish position in the Indianapolis marathon, earning a cool $16,716.

Rodger Ward, Len Sutton and Eddie Sachs, who nailed down the first three positions in the Memorial Day chase—and won a grand total of $195,883 between them—all signed for the nation's first 150-mile event.

Ward and Sutton will bring east with them the very same roadsters in which they collected record cash rewards, as will the majority of the field.

DEFENSIVE tackle Leo Nemeleit of the San Francisco 49ers is playing his 12th season of pro football. The 262-pounder formerly went to Minnesota.

Santa Clara Soph Had Higher Offers Giants Sign College Star For $150,000; Plays Soon

By DICK BARNES
Associated Press Sports Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Bob Garibaldi, a towering right-handed college pitcher, signed with the San Francisco Giants Wednesday for an estimated $150,000. The Giants plan to start him in mid-July.

The poised 20-year-old University of Santa Clara sophomore basketball and baseball star had been the most eagerly sought prospect after being named most valuable player last month at the NCAA World Series.

"I had one or two higher offers," the 6-foot-5 Garibaldi said at a news conference announcing his signing.

Wants To Move Team

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — President Bill Ackerman of the Savannah White Sox in the Class A Sally League stated he will ask the league for permission to move the club within two weeks.

Ackerman said an NAACP-inspired boycott of the Sox by Negro fans is the reason he will seek to relocate the franchise, which was moved to Savannah from Charleston, S.C., last winter.

Ackerman, a Charleston attorney, said he will return the team to Charleston if the situation warrants. He moved the Sox from Charleston after three years of operation when attendance there fell to 40,600 for the 1961 season.

Santa Clara had lost Ernie Fazio, a junior shortstop, several weeks earlier when he signed with Houston for a reported $75,000 to $100,000.

Last Friday the Rev. James E. Sweeters, S.J., the university's athletic moderator, blasted professional baseball scouts. He declared they were ruthless, persistent competitors, badgering and pestering collegiate players to sign.

Garibaldi, who has a blazing fast ball and a good curve, said he picked the Giants because "they have one of the strongest hitting clubs" and are just 80 miles from his home at Stockton, Calif.

Neither Garibaldi nor Horace Stonehan, president of the Giants, would comment on the terms. Bu Stonehan admitted "it's the largest bonus we've ever offered a young man."

Garibaldi quickly gained attention this spring with a no-hit, no-run victory over perennial West Coast baseball powerhouse Southern California. The next time he faced the same team, he added

GREEN Ticket won only one stake race in 1961 but the Traffic Judge colt earned $176,000 in 13 races. He won four times, ran second four times and had two thirds.

EMLEN Tunnel, who often ran the wrong way to avoid tacklers when he was a New York Giant, is the veteran among the Green Bay Packers. The defensive half-back is in his 14th pro season.

The Daily Investor

Analyzing Prices

By William A. Doyle
Q. Our investment club bought some Florida Telephone stock, at $30 a share. The write-ups and information we received on this stock were very good. In fact, it went up in price (to about $38) after our purchase.
But it has since fallen to about $16 or $17. We thought this was a very severe drop. But, in checking with our broker, we are told that this stock has simply gone down in line with the general decline in market prices. Do you have any information on this stock to enlighten our members?

A. Enlighten is a good word, because you should all brighten up when you learn that your stock has not had "a very severe drop." This stock was split, two for one, effective April 1. You don't say when your investment club bought the Florida Telephone stock. But, because you paid $30 a share, we know you made the purchase before the split.
As often happens, the market price moved up in anticipation of the split. When the two-for-one split became effective, the number of shares outstanding doubled. The market price of the new shares, immediately after the split, became half the market price of the old shares, just before the split.

If you people don't know that you now own twice as many shares of Florida Telephone as the number you bought, you're not doing your homework as investment club members. Also, you should be aware that the dividend on this stock has been raised.

The most recent dividend was 13 cents a share. That's equivalent to 26 cents a share on the pre-split stock. Before the split dividends were paid at the rate of 25 cents every three months.

The prime purposes of an investment club should be for the members to learn about the stock market and to study individual stocks — especially those which the club has purchased.

It's clear that you didn't keep posted on this stock. If your broker didn't give you this information on Florida Telephone, he's not being very helpful.

Q. For a long time I've noticed that when you are told of a breach of trust or good faith by a stock broker you tell your reader to take his business to another broker. I say that brokers don't care, unless you are a really big investor.
I can list all kinds of shady and outright dishonest actions by brokerage firms. Congress should either pass more strict

Jets Active Over Matsu Islands

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Waves of jet fighters from Formosa flew over the Nationalist-held Matsu Islands at the northern end of Formosa Strait Monday, the Defense Ministry reported.

It apparently was intended as a demonstration to the Chinese Communists that he Chinese Nationalist air force is prepared for combat if challenged.

The Communists have a big air base at Foochow, 40 miles west of the Matus. The Nationalists conducted similar flyovers at Quemoy last Wednesday and Saturday.

Pocono Sightseeing By Air Newest Package Attraction

A SIGHTSEEING flight over the Poconos is rapidly becoming one of the most popular pastimes in this mountain resort area.

To cover, by car, even a portion of the 1500 square miles encompassed by the Pocono region would take most of the average families' two-week vacation. But, in a thirty minute plane flight one can easily view such famous landmarks as the Delaware Water Gap, Big Pocono Mountain, a deep glacial lake in the Kittatinny Range in New Jersey, as well as "looking in on" many sparkling mountain lakes, large expanses of unspoiled woodland, and dozens of Pocono resorts and towns. In addition, one may see the Delaware River Valley area that is the site for the proposed multimillion dollar Tocks Island Dam recreation project.

Air tours depart several times a day from Hamlen Air Park in East Stroudsburg.
A number of resort owners offer Pocono air sightseeing trips as part of their vacation or honeymoon package rates. Among those resort owners who are "flying inkeepers" are George Colovos, of High Point Inn; PaulASURE, of Paradise Valley Lodge; Wally Hoffman, of Birchwood; and Jack Shinn, of Vacation Valley.

Vets Urged To Study GI Insurance

MORE than three million veterans should give careful study to their GI insurance holdings, according to John S. Gleason, Jr., Administrator of Veterans Affairs.

They are still holding GI term insurance, which can play a valuable role for a growing family but which may become prohibitively expensive for a veteran near retirement age.

"Many older veterans are now finding themselves unable to continue their term insurance payments at their greatly increased rates and unable to obtain new insurance coverage," Administrator Gleason pointed out. "If they die, their widows will have nothing; yet over the years the veterans may have invested as much as $7,000 or $8,000 in this form of insurance."

The VA chief disclosed that about 14,000 World War I veterans still hold U. S. Government Life Insurance term policies which originated in the first World War. More than 285,000 World War I veterans have converted their term policies to a more permanent plan of insurance.

Missionary Speaks Tonight At Assembly Of God Church

REV. G. G. Hemminger who will be speaking tonight, at the First Pentecostal Assembly of God church, 135 Stokes Ave., South Stroudsburg, will use slides, curios, and national costumes in his presentation of the work of the Assemblies of God in Sierra Leone, West Africa. He and his wife will answer many questions concerning missions in Africa, for they have spent 32 years in mission work in Sierra Leone.

Rev. G. G. Hemminger

Serving as the superintendent of the Assemblies of God of Sierra Leone, Rev. Hemminger traveled extensively visiting churches and conducting evangelistic meetings. In Freetown, the capital, he primarily ministered to the Limba tribe. Today there are five Assemblies of God Churches—all fully self-supporting in Freetown and more than 500 converts who have been baptized in water.

Previous to working with the Limba tribe, the Hemmingers worked among the Themne tribe in the interior of Sierra Leone. There they were pioneer missionaries, opening new churches, mission stations, and conducting evangelistic services.

When the Hemmingers return to Sierra Leone after their furlough they will engage in literature and evangelistic ministries.

Rev. and Mrs. Hemminger have one daughter, Levene Esther, 15.

Rev. Robert G. Garner, pastor of the First Pentecostal Assembly
